

Question Time Scorecard – 1/10/2020

We have developed a scoring system to apply to BBC Question Time guests to gain a sense of how elite each weekly panel selection is. We score each guest either 0 (non-elite) or 1 (elite) in five categories: Income, Education, Connections, Honours/Titles, Political/Economic Views. Each guest achieves an overall elite rating out of 5, which is added to the scores of the other guests then divided by the number of guests to provide an overall rating for that week's panel.

Fiona Bruce, the presenter of the show, is a key figure in terms of directing debate and allocating panellists' speaking time so is always included in the calculation for that week's show.

For more information on why we are doing this and what we mean by "elite" check out this blog post.

If you'd like to get involved in the project tweet or e-mail us!

INCOME

Income is the most powerful indicator of elitism. Those with wealth have a wider range of options than those without and a vested interest (conscious or otherwise) in sustaining the economic framework that generates their affluence

Classification	0 (Non-Elite)	1 (Elite)
Criteria	Yearly salary < £68,000	Yearly salary > £68,000 OR Verified millionaire
Panel		Fiona Bruce scores 1 BBC Salary for 17/18 listed as £259,9990
		Grant Shapps scores 1 Member of Parliament (Salary £81,932) Held a second job as a “multimillion-dollar web marketer” under the pseudonym Michael Green for at least a year after he first became an MP. Verified millionaire.
		Alison McGovern scores 1 Member of Parliament (Salary £81,932)
		David Linden scores 1 Member of Parliament (Salary £81,932)
		Helen Stokes-Lampard scores 1 As a GP partner (average salary £110,000) and Chair of the Royal College of General Practitioners there is sufficient evidence to class her as a >£68,000 earner
		Stuart Rose scores 1 Verified millionaire with an estimated net worth in the region of £50 million

EDUCATION

The Sutton Trust reported in 2016 that Oxford and Cambridge recruit more students from eight independent/highly competitive schools (such as Eton) than almost 3,000 UK state schools put together. A linked government report stated that “Our examination of who gets the top jobs in Britain today found elitism so stark that it could be called ‘Social Engineering’”, with independent schools and Oxbridge a key component in this social selection.

Classification	0 (Non-Elite)	1 (Elite)
Criteria	State school attendee Non-Oxbridge higher education	Attended a private/independent school OR Attended Oxford, Cambridge or equivalent elite overseas university in top ten of Times Higher Education Rankings
Panel		Fiona Bruce scores 1 Attended Hertford College, Oxford
		Grant Shapps scores 1 Attended selective Watford Grammar School for boys
	Alison McGovern scores 0 Meets criteria
	David Linden scores 0 Meets criteria
	Helen Stokes-Lampard scores 0 Meets criteria
		Stuart Rose scores 1 Attended independent Bootham School

CONNECTIONS

It's not what you know, it's who you know shouldn't apply in a democracy...but most would agree that it does. Many high-ranking politicians and journalists (e.g. The Millibands, the Dimblebys) are embedded in the elite through family ties or are members of private clubs whose "exclusive" status marks them out as networking hubs for the elite. Moreover, if QT guests count as friends/kin people who occupy positions of power throughout politics, business and the media this again makes them less likely to reflect common opinion or present an unbiased view of institutions in which a loved one, confidante or network acquaintance plays a key role.

Classification	0 (Non-Elite)	1 (Elite)
Criteria	No close family, friendship or networking ties to high-ranking figures in politics, business, the media or other powerful institutions	One or more close family, friendship or networking ties to high-ranking figures in politics, business, the media or other powerful institutions
Panel		Fiona Bruce scores 1 Father a high ranking businessman, regional managing director of Unilever (2017 turnover 53.7 billion euros) (source) Husband Nigel Sharrocks a high-ranking businessman, CEO of the marketing company Aegis Group Northern Europe which represents companies with cumulative turnover of £500 billion (source 1) (source 2)
		Grant Shapps scores 1 His Parliamentary Register of Member's Financial Interests shows donations from wealthy individuals and businesses, affirming his links to business and wealth from his days as "Michael Green"
		Alison McGovern scores 1 Married to economist Ashwin Kumar, formerly a senior civil servant in the Department for Work and Pensions and Passenger Director at Passenger Focus
	David Linden scores 0 Meets criteria
	Helen Stokes-Lampard scores 0 Meets criteria

		Stuart Rose scores 1 Connections with Kate Reardon, editor of Tatler magazine, and a Conservative life peer
--	--	--

HONOURS/TITLES

It seems fair to assume that those vested with hereditary titles such as Earl, Duke, Baronet, etc can be classed as elite. Prestigious titles bestowed by unelected bodies, such as OBEs, membership of the House of Lords and Church titles like Bishop and Archbishop, are often awarded regardless of background (e.g. OBEs to sports stars from poor backgrounds) but nonetheless suggest elite approval of these individuals – they are “vetted by the elite”.

Classification	0 (Non-Elite)	1 (Elite)
Criteria	No high-ranking hereditary title No high-ranking honour/title bestowed by an unelected body	Possesses a high-ranking hereditary title OR Possesses a high-ranking honour/title bestowed by an unelected body
Panel	Fiona Bruce scores 0 She does not have high-ranking title...yet!
		Grant Shapps scores 1 Member of the Privy Council, a high office elected by the PM/Queen rather than voters
	Alison McGovern scores 0 Only title is a democratic one: Member of Parliament.
	David Linden scores 0 Only title is a democratic one: Member of Parliament.
	<hr/> Helen Stokes-Lampard scores 0 Meets criteria
		<hr/> Stuart Rose scores 1 Baron Rose of Monewden since 2014 <hr/>

POLITICAL/ECONOMIC VIEWS

It isn't entirely fair to classify someone as financially elite because they are wealthy. There are examples of financially privileged individuals who have campaigned for redistribution of wealth. Therefore, we take into account economic and political viewpoints expressed verbally or through voting patterns

Classification	0 (Non-Elite)	1 (Elite)
Criteria	Political outlook prioritises what we might call “public wealth” – redistribution of wealth, living wage, wage rises in line with or above inflation, protection or investment in public services, union and worker’s rights, nationalisation of industries	Political outlook prioritises what we might call “private wealth” – low tax rates, downsizing of state, privatisation of state services, benefit freezes or cuts, public sector pay freezes, limitation of trade union powers
Panel	Fiona Bruce scores 0 As a journalist she does not express strong views in this area*
		Grant Shapps scores 1 As per They Work for You: Consistently voted against raising welfare benefits at least in line with prices and almost always voted for a reduction in spending on welfare benefits BUT Generally voted against a banker’s bonus tax and generally voted against an annual tax on the value of expensive homes
	Alison McGovern scores 0 As per They Work for You: consistently voted against a reduction in spending on welfare benefits BUT Generally voted for a banker’s bonus tax and a mansion tax
	David Linden scores 0 Limited voting record as per They Work for You but “Consistently voted for higher taxes on banks”
	Helen Stokes-Lampard scores 0 A health professional whose economic/political views are not clear enough to classify

		Stuart Rose scores 1 Businessman whose economic priorities are made clear by this piece in the Daily Mail in which he passionately argues for workers to go back to offices to benefit business
--	--	---

* We accept that the burden of proof for making an “elite” judgment lies with us. Therefore, when sufficiently clear evidence to classify a panellist as elite cannot be found they will be classed non-elite in that category as a default. We may, for example, strongly suspect that someone has an income above £68,000 or influential contacts but if we can’t access information that suggests this beyond reasonable doubt we will classify them as non-elite for these categories.

Overall elite ratings (for guests and the panel as a whole):

Total Score	0	1	2	3	4	5
Corresponding Status	Not Elite	A Little Elite	Quite Elite	Elite	Very Elite	Exceptionally Elite

*Fiona Bruce scores three out of five – she is Elite

*Grant Shapps scores five out of five – he is Exceptionally Elite

*Alison McGovern scores two out of five – she is Quite Elite

*David Linden scores one out of five – he is A Little Elite

*Helen Stokes-Lampard scores one out of five – she is A Little Elite

*Stuart Rose scores five out of five – he is Exceptionally Elite

Combined score of panel = 3 + 4 + 2 + 5 + 2 + 1 = 17

*Divided by no. of panellists (6) = 3.4, rounded to closest no.
= 3

OVERALL ELITE RATING FOR THIS EDITION OF QUESTION TIME IS:

3 – ELITE